

Genealogical Magazines in the Shell Point Genealogical Society (SPGS) Archive

The SPGS has an extensive archive of genealogical magazines that include subscriptions and donations from members. For some titles like Family Tree Magazine, American Ancestors, New England Ancestors, and Internet Genealogy the archive includes complete collections of back issues. For other titles, the archive includes many years of back issues that have been donated. For a few titles, the archive has only a single issue. The following is a complete listing of titles included in the archive. See the SPGS web page (www.genatp.net) for a listing of available issues of each magazine and how to search them. Back issues of some titles can also be searched on the internet. Links to these can be found on the SPGS web page.

Discovering Family History

Published by Moorshead Magazines

From 2008 (Jan-Feb) To discontinued date unknown

Moorshead Magazines has launched a new print magazine called Discovering Family History. Discovering Family History is a bimonthly magazine targeted at people who are starting their genealogy, need a refresher course or are tackling a new aspect of genealogy. Moorshead publisher Halvor Moorshead says in the debut issue's editorial that he realized there was a need for a genealogy basics magazine when he was sending people to websites like Cyndi's List for beginner's resources. "We sold plenty of subscriptions to both magazines, but I found that I was continually explaining to new subscribers some real genealogy basics - steering them to Cyndi's List and other places that listed beginner's courses. These people were smart enough, but they just needed something more basic than what we were selling. It was sobering to realize that there might be a big market for a genealogy magazine that dealt with the basics." Discovering Family History's editor is Ed Zapletal.
